Sir Edwards Grey's Speech Blasts Hopes Of Extremists

More Drastic Regulations Would Lose Great Britain the Friendship of Neutrals.

London, Jan. 26 .- The speeches of Sir Edward Grey in the house of commons and of the Marquis of Lansdowne, minister without portfolio, in the house of lords this afternoon on the blockade policy of Great Britain dispelled all hope among those favoring a formal blockade of Germany that the government would push such

Foreign Secretary Grey made the following statement:

"Through investigation by the gov ernment of the situation with regard to shipments to Germany shows that everything possible is being done with out causing serious troubles with neutrals."

If, he added, there was any policy more pleasing to neutrals than the one at present in force, the government would be pleased to examine and to consider it if it appeared equally effective.

In regard to the negotiations of the United States and the intentions of the government in treating America's protests, he said:

"We are telling the American government in our reply to the last note from Washington, that we are considering the whole matter in consultation with the French government and that we may consult our other allies. "If we concede everything asked in the last note from the United States we will have to give up our attempt to stop even contraband from reaching the enemy. If we apply the principles of blockade expounded by the United States in the Civil war, then neutrals should help England. If they say England should not be permitted to interfere with shipments to Germany in accordance with these princples, then they must depart from neutrality.'

MOVING PICTURES SUNDAY

Relief Benefit for the Jewish Sufferera Here.

Following the suggestion of Presi dent Wilson that an effort be made by the entire nation to raise money for the relief of the Jews now starving in the war districts of Europe, a benefit concert and moving picture entertainment will be held in the Bennington opera house next Sunday at three p.m. and at 7:30 p. m.

The management has contributed the house at a figure which they think considerably below the necessary expense, feeling that in this way relieving the suffering.

The extent of suffering of the Jews is not generally known in this country, bread is selling in parts of Russia for a rouble and a half or seventyfive cents which allowing for the normal difference in the purchasing value of money and the scale of wages prevailing, is the equivalent of a dollar and a half here bread. The people are dying of hunger by the thousands. Thousands are practically without clothing and sleeping in the snow. The anguish and torture of the mothers without food for their children is beyond belief. The money will be extended in the most practical manner by the Jewish National Aid Society to secure food for the relief. The effort to aid them from this community is in charge of H. Harry Sharpe as treasurer and Julius L. Weichman as secretary. Should there be any of the pitying in this community who wish to contribute more than the ten cent price of admission, they may send check or money to H.
